Who Will Handle Your Startup's IT?

Trying to get a startup off the ground isn't easy.

There's a lot to manage at once, all of which have one thing in common: it costs money.

One key expense is IT. At one point their technology needs may have been basic, but in the modern business world, it's not so likely anymore.

That was the case for this local business that was launching a production processing facility—they called ARCIS Technology Group.

The Problem

From the very start, a business that's in it for the long haul needs to take considerations like IT infrastructure scaling and cybersecurity seriously. This business needed expert guidance with all of their technology needs.

They didn't want to hire a company to just handle the launch and leave the management to them. They were in the market for someone to fully manage their IT needs on an ongoing basis.

The Solution

ARCIS Technology Group performed an analysis of their environment and evaluated what the best solution would be for their business. We took note of their needs, the way they would rely on technology, and carefully laid out a plan for how the necessary IT assets and services would be procured, implemented, and delivered.

After meeting with their management team and discussing their options, they chose our Managed Services, knowing they could be confident in our expertise and support.

How ARCIS Technology Group Solves This Business' Problems

- Continuous Reliability: ARCIS Technology Group has IT experts available to handle all IT needs whenever they have a question or concern.
- Centralized IT Management of Users and IT Devices: Having their complete IT environment managed from a single point ensures consistency and reliability. Our team of experienced IT professionals will keep their IT systems running smoothly and securely so they don't have to worry about them.
- Robust Security Services: With ARCIS Technology Group on their side, they'll know their data is protected by a range of industry-leading security solutions and best practices.
- Scalable Service: We deliver the service and expertise usually reserved for larger, more established businesses, but designed with their startup's particular needs in mind.
- High ROI: You can't cut corners on something as important as IT at the start of a new business. This company understands that leveraging our support is an investment in the growth of their startup.
